Are you working on windfarm support vessels?

You need Nautilus!

The rapid growth of the offshore renewables industry has created lots of jobs for seafarers.

But it's not all good news.

Nautilus — the trade union and specialist organisation for maritime professionals — has received countless reports of problems, ranging from poor pay and conditions, to excessive working hours, and threats and intimidation from management.

It's not good enough.

Seafarers working in this sector deserve better. Pushing up to wind turbine towers or substations late at night, with winds, tides and crosswinds, and transferring crew safely is a skill to be mastered — with lives at stake.

That's why Nautilus is working with members in the industry — and with good operators — to promote high standards. We want to make sure that seafarers in this sector get decent pay, good working conditions, high standards of safety and a supportive working culture.

We are campaigning to ensure that:

- Pay and conditions for mariners in the sector are in line with other professionals in the offshore renewables industry
- There are clear minimum day rates for crews — and that they are paid from the moment they leave for their vessel to the time they get home
- Working time limits are adhered to — putting an end to crew having to do paperwork, drills, cleaning, bunkering and repairs in what should be their rest time
- The provision of fresh and healthy food and/or an adequate allowance for food and living expenses

- Companies to provide full PPE and to cover the costs of training and STCW certification
- No victimisation, bullying and harassment by shore-based management

Join us in our fight for a better future.

Nautilus is offering a specially discounted joining rate to seafarers working on crew transfer vessels.

Membership will not only help to give windfarm sector mariners a strong and united voice, it will also enable Nautilus to strengthen its campaign to drive up standards in the industry.

Membership also brings you an unrivalled range of specialist benefits and services, including:

● Help if you have a problem at work

If you feel you have not been treated fairly, or are facing difficulties at work, Nautilus can provide expert advice and assistance — with a 24/7 helpline. We can support you in a disciplinary hearing or an employment tribunal, and advise on work-related problems such as contracts, redundancy, bullying or discrimination, non-payment of wages, and pensions.

● A voice for you

Nautilus is the voice for more than 21,000 maritime professionals and we represent members' views in talks with owners, operators and governments and with bodies such as the International Maritime Organisation, the International Transport Workers' Federation and the TUC. We work to improve our members' lives — from better pay to improved health and safety. If you have ideas about how to improve your workplace, Nautilus gives you a voice. Working together, our collective strength means we can talk with your employer to try to improve things.

● Legal support

Nautilus members can access a wide range of free legal services, to get support on work-related problems and some non-work related matters. Last year, the Union recovered more than £1m in compensation for members who suffered work-related illness or injuries. And Nautilus has a global network of lawyers who can help you wherever and whenever you need it.

● Extra savings

Helping you at work is our main concern. But membership brings many other benefits — including cheaper holidays and car hire, savings on insurance, financial services, and vehicle breakdown cover. The Nautilus Welfare Fund, our own registered charity, provides support for members and dependants at times of special need.

● Standing up for seafarers

Nautilus continues to campaign for more government support for the British shipping industry, increased assistance for seafarer training, and for adequate funding of the Maritime & Coastguard Agency to ensure it enforces standards of safety and working conditions on all vessels in our waters.

● Undervalued?

Average earnings are higher in unionised workplaces. Nautilus stands up for your rights as a skilled seafarer to a fair wage and a decent standard of living, and we negotiate with dozens of shipping companies on issues such as pay, working conditions, working hours and pensions to secure agreements that recognise the expertise of our members. The average trade union member in the UK gets over 25% more annual leave a year, compared with a non-unionised worker, and workers in unionised workplaces are more likely to receive job-related training.
